

A student observes germs through a microscope in the Ohio Department of Agriculture Tent.

A sow and piglets kept cool in the O'Neill Swine Barn, where visitors could learn about the various features of barns that help to protect livestock.

see how barns protect pigs.

▲ Children learned about soil and caring for plants at the Land & Living Exhibit.

▲ Families enjoyed the pedal tractor Country Cruise .

▲ Youth of all ages enjoyed the opportunity to milk a real cow with the help of a veterinary student.

▲ Children were able to interact with baby animals and learn about caring for livestock.

Children enjoyed learning about poultry breeds and seeing baby chicks and ducks.

Helping to spin yarn with the Weaver's Guild was a highlight of the Sheep and Wool station.

Adventurous kids could climb a 30-foot corn wall amid a field of corn inside the Ag & Hort Building, then learn about different types of corn and its many uses.

